

The Corruption and Crime Commission: Unmasking the role of lawyers in corruption investigations

15 May 2024

CCC pulls back the curtains for Law Week 2024

The CCC may investigate allegations of corruption (serious misconduct) by public officers using particular powers to obtain information. The Commission may examine a witness and require the production of records. Usually an examination is conducted in private and evidence given remains secret. For Law Week, the Commission will re-create a portion of a mock examination in a fictitious public officer.

The Hon John McKechnie AO, KC will preside over the mock examination on Wednesday 15 May 2024, 10.30 am - 11.30 am and explain the various roles lawyers play during the course of an investigation and in the examination room to assist the Commission reach an opinion as to whether serious misconduct has occurred.

What is the role of Counsel assisting the Commission? Can a witness be legally represented?

This invitation is extended to members of the public sector, students, legal professionals and the public.

Places are limited, RSVP now to avoid disappointment.
