

MEDIA ALERT - ATTENTION CHIEF OF STAFF

8 December 2016

FOCUS ON WHISTLEBLOWERS

Public sector leaders gather for International Anti-Corruption Day and an insight into the role whistleblowers play in calling out serious misconduct or workplace corruption.

Friday 9 December is International Anti-Corruption Day.

The Corruption and Crime Commission and Public Sector Commission are hosting a special breakfast event for public service leaders on whistleblowing trends, corruption themes, areas of risk, prevention strategies, reporting mechanisms and wider corruption considerations.

The featured speakers will be Corruption and Crime Commissioner the Hon. John McKechnie QC, and NSW Deputy Ombudsman Chris Wheeler who has over 30 years' experience in complaint-handling and investigations, including public interest disclosures (whistleblowing) – including focussing on getting staff to report internally as soon as they see a problem, knowing they will be protected and supported.
