Commission Statement

Review of WA Police action into recommendation to improve investigation processes.

The Corruption and Crime Commission will continue to monitor the WA Police response to a recommendation made in its May 2023 report 'Report on oversight of a police investigation into an arrest for disorderly conduct'. In that report, the Commission recommended WA Police review and amend its policies and procedures relating to internal investigations and reviews.

A follow up report by the Commission tabled in Parliament today details the WA Police response and actions undertaken to date. While WA Police has made some progress towards meeting the recommendation, several actions remain outstanding including comprehensive evaluation of the changes made.

The Commission will seek a detailed update from WA Police in six months' time and conduct a further review in 12 months' time.
